If no candidate holds a majority, that is, over half of the vote cast, a second count is taken. During the second count the candidate having the least number of votes in the first vote is eliminated. This candidate's name is crossed off the ballots which name him as first choice. On these ballots the next names listed are now counted as full votes for those candidates. This procedure, eliminating the candidate with the least number of votes, crossing off his name and re-counting the changed ballots for the next candidate named on the ballot, continues through as many steps as are necessary until one candidate has over fifty per cent of the total vote. This candidate is then declared elected, no information is given out as to the standing of the other candidates and all ballots shall be destroyed immediately.
